

Special Screening

Harold (Stan Rowe) leads a solitary life and is suffering from a frightening new illness, Onset Rigours Risease (ORD) which is a male-specific condition that begins as extreme stiffness and ends in zombification. He receives home-help from nurse Penny rudge (Sarah Spencer) and their friendship gives Harold a new lease for life. After an experimental new treatment fails however, Harold's condition deteriorates and he ends up on the run from a group of violent vigilantes who want to kill patient zero.

This special screening is followed by a live, in person Q&A with writer/director Keith Wright as he discusses the films origins, production and its links to mental and physical health.

This special screening is included in the registration fee for the Nightmare 24 event. Delegates will need their conference pass for access to the screen.
